Office of the Representative on Freedom of the Media

050/16

Vienna, 5 April 2016

Aleksandrs Kuzmins
Secretary-executive
FIDH Latvian Human Rights Committee

Dear Mr. Kuzmins,

Thank you for your letter of 4 March informing the Representative about a series of events that in your view are a cause for concern about media freedom in Latvia.

In response please allow me to first give some general comments.

The Representative follows media development in all 57 OSCE participating States with regard to serious non-compliance with commitments to free media freedom of expression. In the context of the crisis in and around Ukraine, she has reacted to a number of issues and also addressed broad-based challenges, such as propaganda and responses to it.

I would like to draw your attention to the Recommendations following the expert meeting “Propaganda for War and hatred and Freedom of the Media,” which our Office hosted together with the German OSCE chairmanship on 12 February. Among other things, the Representative said that the direct intervention of governments to stop propaganda is counter-productive. A policy of state-run counter-propaganda, forced blocking of access to the media of one’s choice and an arbitrary ban on entry to countries or regions for foreign journalists makes no practical sense in today’s world and serves only to exacerbate conflicts and tensions and should be abolished (recommendations in full available at <http://www.osce.org/fom/225351?download=true>).

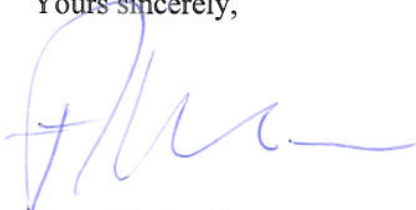

Regarding the cases you raise in your letter, I share with you the following information:

In a letter dated 23 November the Representative responded to the decision of the Chief State Notary of the Register of Enterprises on 22 October 2015 not to enter Rossiya Segodnya in the list of representations registered in Latvia. You can find a reference to it in the last report by the Representative to the OSCE Permanent Council of 10 March (available at <http://www.osce.org/pc/227291?download=true>).

The Representative has also recently written on two occasions to the Minister of Foreign Affairs Edgars Rinkēvičs. Firstly expressing concern about draft amendments to the Criminal Code on “Crimes Against the State” that passed a first reading in the Saeima on 3 March and secondly about a precedent in take-down policy related to media websites in Latvia (<http://www.osce.org/fom/230866>).

Thank you for your interest in the work of the Representative.

Yours sincerely,

Frane Maroević
Director
